Resolutions of Respect, Obituaries and

It has become generally evident that Handsome Harry Daugherty is slipping in his race for Republican senatorial nomination, since Monsieur Herrick opened the w. k. barrel. Nor is it to be presumed that all the waning is in the use of money of which M. Herrick has so much. The endorsement of the Hynicka-Cincinnati crowd, with the enforced withdrawal of the Cincinnati candidate, means that the preponderating wet support is pledged to Herrick. What Herrick has pledged them can only be guessed. This is believed to be the end of the Daugherty boom and all his labors for the party will have gone for naught. To make the dose more bitter for Daugherty comes the tip that before long the Anti-Saloon league will announce its support of former Senator Dick. Maybe after it is all over Handsome Harry will discover that politics is not played these days as it was when he was a boy. He has been straight Republican through thick and thin and now he may learn that this is only a name, that a Republican organization is only a pipe line in which outside organizations may run their way to rule.

Notice from the state civil service commission to classified employees of the state, admonishing them not to take part in political activity is a joke. The notice is conveyed in a brochure issued by the commission over the signature of Z. B. Campbell. That the employees in the classified list will not take heed seriously is to be expected, for it can scarce be believed to be all wool and a yard wide. The memory of the farce investigation of activity at the presidential primary on behalf of Willis is too recent. It will be remembered then that George L. Stoughton, secretary of the state industrial commission, organized the three-to-a-precinct band of single shooters among the classified employees to work for Willis only. Letter evidence of their activity was produced. There was charge of campaign fund seeking in Cleveland. The air was filled with rumors about which the truth was easy to establish. The white wash brush was then applied. The latest Campbell warning is only another application to brighten up the surface.

The Cincinnati Enquirer editorially arraigns the consistent political and sentimental misrepresentation of the Queen City as a den of badness. That there is misrepresentation is not to be denied but there is also a misunderstanding. Cincinnati is an admirable city with thousands on thousands of admirable citizens, but so long as Cincinnati permits the wrong element at the front to display the city's dirty linen in dirty political deals, just so long will Cincinnati's good name suffer. The Queen City may spend millions to set herself right and tell the people her good points but it is all for naught, when a crude political deal with her worst elements, deliberately boasted, can deliver the city vote. Newspaper defense will help, but the Rud Hynicka act at Chicago with his Cincinnati U-7 makes this a bad time to appeal for justice.

Everybody remembers how Governor Willis in former days went eloquent tears about the removal of tariff on wool. It was his pet theme. Yet at the recent convention he never breathed a sound on wool. The producer, under the Underwood tariff, is getting more than he ever received before. Ohio Delaine, unwashed, is selling for 32 cents when Willis two years ago predicted that it would drop to 13 or less. That ought not to faze Willis, who can claim economy in his administration which has spent three million dollars more yearly than his predecessor, and who for the first time in years has caused the yearly expenditures to exceed the yearly income.

In times gone by, political fights have developed Know Nothings and Copperheads who created sectional and religious strife for partisan advantage. The present is the first time in the history of the republic that political leaders have become traitors in an attempt to employ allegiance to foreign potentates in an effort to unseat an American presi-
